

Year End Tax Savings for Cash Basis Taxpayers

There are only a few days left in the year. So now is the time to take those last minute tax savings.

Disclaimer: I am not a lawyer, nor do I play one on TV. So do your due diligence and either check with your CPA, tax planner, or the IRS site.

If you are a cash-basis taxpayer, as many sole proprietors are, you claim expenses as they are paid. Likewise, you claim revenue as you deposit it.

Business Planning 2009 Webinar Announced

Dr. Jeanette Cates has announced a Business Planning for 2009 Webinar on Thursday, November 20th, at 8:00 pm Eastern. Full details and registration are available only for members of the Online Success Incubator.

"In past years I've done this for the public. But this year I'm restricting it to members. I've found that those who are serious about their business appreciate the ability to follow up after the business planning session and the most effective way is to do that through the Incubator," said Cates.

Membership in the Online Success Incubator is only $47 per month and includes 12 full information products, each sold for $97. Members follow a 12-stage plan to achieve the level of Online Success they desire, with full access to the 12 modules and an on-demand video library.

Revenue Planning 2009

Too often we toss out a term but don't follow up with enough details to make it helpful. Such is the case of Revenue Planning, mentioned in a related article titled "Entrepreneur Bonus Days."

So let me explain revenue planning in more detail. For some people budgeting or forecasting might be a more familiar term. However, I prefer revenue planning because it denotes both a sense of control and the feeling of expectation of its achievement. So it's a more confident term.

The holidays are upon us! And while they have the reputation for being very busy, they are actually riddled with “bonus days” - those days when you aren’t expected to be at work. Or if you are physically present, then everyone assumes you’re having an office party!
